* Why is the total number of visitors less than the combined #'s of both Beach Retreats? This is because 1,079 parents visited the blog during both weeks of Beach Retreat. We count unique visitors, not repeat visitors.

I shared the Beach Retreat Blog with a nurse at work today, and she looked at it for at least 30 minutes, asking lots of questions. She is catholic and very far from Christ. It was so neat to share the Blog and pics with a coworker, and sense God's Presence working.

Thanks for making this possible. I find myself praying more fervently for all involved after watching this site, reading the blogs, tweets, etc

So exciting, I have been doing the Silent Sounds too from the website. God is working through their time with him on the beach!

I'm in tears, it is so wonderful to add our hearts in prayer while our kids are hearing and experinceing this awesome message! Thank you LORD!

[Comment From Jimmy Miles Mom]

How about all 205 of us bow our heads for a second and ask God to bless the rest of the service? Say at 9:25?

Let's all say a special prayer of thanksgiving for Dr. Young and the entire youth staff of SBC for the amazing things they do with kids every summer--at the high school and the JH retreats. AMAZING. Still waiting to hear if anyone is planning and "old folks" retreat? :) I bet there'd be a big enrollment for that, too!

What awesome coverage, all the photos, videos and blogcast have been amazing. We have gotten so much joy this week from this web and it has really touched our hearts to see all these wonderful high schoolers from all over Houston having fun and giving the glory to GOD. Following along with silent sounds and knowing that my son is out on the beach studying the word of God is amazing. My 13yo is so pumped for JHBR and has shared this web with so many of his friends who have said I am going next year. He told his friends there is no way to describe has awesome it is you have to experience it!!! What a way to witness through the web!! Thanks to all at SBC who make this possible!!!

Reading the blogs these 2 weeks makes me want to volunteer next year, but will my girls let me? May have to let them go without me again and let God do His thing.

[Comment From Amy - Megans Mom]

I think I will volunteer next year... I can hardly stand the wait for the blog each nite!! LOL... I think I MUST be there to experience the outstanding moments... first hand!!!
